MUIR MURRAY

ESTATE WINERY

Dr. Jonathan Murray and his wife Lesley, owners of Muir Murray Estate Winery, came to Nova Scotia in 2003 wanting to get into the grape growing industry. Muir Murray Estate Winery is located in Lower Wolfville and on May 1, 2009 Muir Murray Estate Winery officially opened its doors to offer premium Nova Scotia Wines to the public. Muir Murray Estate Winery has 40 acres of vines planted in L'Acadie Blanc, Chardonnay, Pinot Grigio, Riesling, Seyval Blanc, New York Muscat, Cabernet Franc, Leon Millot, Baco Noir, and much more. They have approximately another 150 acres to plant on two sites in the Gaspereau Valley.

Muir Murray Estate Winery was the first winery in Nova Scotia to use Stelvin screw caps on their bottling line instead of the traditional corks. Muir Murray Estate Winery will also be the first winery to open a learning institution – opening the doors of AVIEW (Annapolis Valley Institute for the Education of Wine) on May 20th, 2010 which will host seminars on grape growing, wine making and wine tasting. AVIEW will also have culinary classes, meeting rooms, a wine library and in the future, a tea room. They are also hosting many East Coast Musicians throughout the season, including Rose Cousins, Amelia Curran, Erin Costello, Matt Mays and many others. Dr. Murray also has future plans for cottages at the winery location in Wolfville and to be one of the largest wineries in Nova Scotia. Dr. Murray and his wife Lesley envision Muir Murray Estate Winery as Your Nova Scotia Wine Destination
